A group accomplishment cleverly disguised as a company award

Fifteen years ago on Sept. 10, 2001, we founded our company with the simple idea that every financial advisor should have only one person to answer to—the client. Yet, this recognition is not for the idea or the company; it's for the people, our full-time associates, affiliated colleagues, investing clients and communities in which we live that make it all possible. It's small proof that, in America, anything is possible when people come together to follow a truly independent path.
